New Building For S.T.C. Seems Assured

The Senate amendment to the appropriation bill providing $250,000 for a teachers' training school building at the College here was concurred in by the House during the closing hours of the legislature last Saturday and is now ready to go to Governor Caulfield, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

According to President Lamkin, while no money for the building and its equipment can be secured until a year from next July and then only after the public school money has been released, the action has deep significance to the College and Maryville since it shows that the need for the Training School building has been recognized.

President Lamkin Makes Trip South

President Lamkin returned to the College, Monday, from Jackson, Miss., where he spoke before the State Teachers Association on the subject, "Our Educational Problems," on Friday evening, May 1.

According to Mr. Lamkin the question uppermost in his thoughts and speech of the educators in Mississippi is concerning the recent action of American Educational accrediting agencies in taking educational institutions in Mississippi off of the approved lists after September of this year, on account of alleged action of the late governor of the state, in making political appointments.

President Lamkin says that future action of the accrediting agencies will probably depend on the action of the new governor of that State.

Regents of College Hold Meeting Here

Dr. Jesse Miller of Maryville was re-elected president of the board of regents of the College, at a reorganization meeting held at the College last Wednesday morning. All of the officers of the board were re-elected. Mr. Bert G. Voorhees, St. Joseph attorney, was re-elected vice-president and W. A. Rickenbrode, business manager of the College, was re-elected secretary.

Charles A. Lee, state superintendent of schools, an ex-officio member of the board met with the board.

The reorganization meeting was necessary because the appointment of two new members of the board was recently confirmed by the state Senate. The two new members are Judge A. T. Weatherly, Chillicothe; and Dr. John M. Perry, Princeton.

At the regular assembly of the College President Lamkin, after expressing his appreciation of having the Regents present, called on Dr. Jesse Miller to speak. Dr. Miller in turn asked Judge A. T. Weatherly of Chillicothe to say a few words to the students. Mr. Weatherly complied with the request and among other things called attention of the students to the great responsibilities which confront them as teachers and leaders in this age.

Those who made the trip are: Dean Pike and Misses Helwig, Fisher, White, Blanshan, Dow, DeLuce, Painter, Bowman, Millikan, Martindale, Schulze, Dr. Dildine, Mr. Schowengordt, Mr. Pink, Senora Prieto and Mr. Phillips. Mr. Salvesen, Dr. Edmiston, Mr. Kinnaid, Dr. Hake and Mr. Colbert.

College Group Attends Meeting At Warrensburg

Sister College Is Host to Faculty Members of State Colleges For Annual Faculty Get-together.

Twenty-two members of the College faculty attended the annual Missouri State Teachers College Faculty Members get-together, held at the College in Warrensburg last Friday and Saturday.

All those who made the trip were agreed that the faculty at Warrensburg entertained royally with teas, gride parties, golf tournament and other dinner and party affairs, sufficient to satisfy and please all their guests. The teachers at Warrensburg provided cars for transportation and all of the entertainment.

A reception was given Friday night in the Administration Building with a program in the Auditorium at the close of which refreshments were served. One of the most interesting trips provided was that which took them to Arrow Rock. Thirty-two teachers made this trip and had luncheon in the Old Tavern.

The reception and dinner given at Pertlo Springs, on Saturday night was attended by one-hundred and fifty home and visiting teachers. Bridge and dancing were a part of this well planned program.

Sectional and union meetings were held Saturday morning at which the problems concerning the group were discussed.

There were twenty faculty members from Kirksville, more than forty from Springfield, and one member from Cape Girardeau at the meeting. Next year the group is to meet at Kirksville, the last year's meeting having been held at Cape Girardeau.

The members of the curriculum committee went to Warrensburg for a meeting on Thursday before the general meeting opened on Friday. Twelve of the S. T. C. group went in the College bus, while the others went in cars. Some of the group returned to Maryville on Saturday evening but some did not return until Sunday.

Those who made the trip are: Dean Pike and Misses Helwig, Fisher, White, Blanshan, Dow, DeLuce, Painter, Bowman, Millikan, Martindale, Schulze, Dr. Dildine, Mr. Schowengordt, Mr. Pink, Senora Prieto and Mr. Phillips. Mr. Salvesen, Dr. Edmiston, Mr. Kinnaid, Dr. Hake and Mr. Colbert.

Howard Leech
Mr. Howard (Hickory) Leech, a graduate of the College who is superintendent of schools at Perry, was in Maryville last Saturday, and made a visit to the College. Mr. Leech, who was on the College faculty last summer as instructor in industrial arts, has been re-elected superintendent of schools at Perry.

Mr. G. E. Dille has been unanimously elected to the position of superintendent of schools at Chillicothe. This will make the sixth year for Mr. Dille at Chillicothe.

Summer Session Is to Be in Two Terms

Generally speaking the summer term at the College is the same as others during the year. The same curriculum will be maintained. General courses in all departments will be offered.

During the past year every teacher has encountered problems in the school-room. Similar ones will arise during the coming year and the solution of these is the task of the teacher. It is the task of this College to assist teachers in every way to successfully solve them. The administration and faculty in planning for the summer term, have attempted to organize the courses so they will give the greatest amount of information and training that will be of use in the classroom.

The general regulations of the College as stated in the latest catalog apply to the Summer Session.

To accommodate a number of teachers who cannot spend the entire ten weeks in college this summer, arrangements have been made to organize classes at the beginning of the term (June 1) to run five weeks, meeting twice daily until and including July 3, as well as the classes which will meet throughout the summer once every day. Students desiring to do so may take two courses, each carrying two and one-half hours of credit during the first of the term, thus being able to make five hours of credit in the period June 1—July 3. Similarly classes will be organized on July 6 to meet twice daily until and including August 7, enabling students who can not enter earlier to enroll July 6, and complete the work for five hours credit on August 7. To take advantage of either of these half-term periods students must enter not later than the dates announced for classes to begin their work.

The programs and catalog for the summer quarter, and for each half of the quarter are now available. Write for one if interested.

Board of Regents Offers Song Prize

The Board of Regents of the College is offering a prize of five dollars to the person who will write the best Alma Mater song for the College High School.

The words of the song must be original. The contest closes, Wednesday, May 6. The judges are Katherine and Wilma Lewis, and Thomas R. Lawrence. The songs should be handed in to any of the above named judges.

Address
Mr. E. W. Mounce, chairman of the Commerce department of the College, will deliver the high school commencement address at Ravenwood, Thursday night, May 7. His subject will be "Responsible Citizenship."

"The Ballet of the Magic Flute" Is to Be Given

Annual May Fete Will Be Produced May 15 at 7:45 P.M. and May 16 at 3:00 P.M.

"The Magic Flute," has been chosen for the theme of the annual May Fete production which is to be staged on the College campus, the evening of May 15, at 7:45 o'clock, and the afternoon of May 16, at 3:00 o'clock.

The ballet has been arranged and is being produced under the direction of Miss Nell Martindale, Director of Physical Education for women, and promises to be the most colorful and elaborate May Fete produced thus far at the College.

The stage set for the ballet which is being prepared under the direction of Mr. U. G. Whiffen of the Industrial Arts Department, consists of a Greek Catholic Church which occupies the center of the stage. On the right is a peasant home with barn attached. This setting is balanced on the left by an open market place.

The dance drama opens with the National Polish Dance "Kraakowiak," in which two hundred dancers take part. Immediately following this dance the hero and heroine, Luc and Lisa, who are very much in love, arrive. While they are dancing an aged Marquis passes by. He is immediately impressed with the beauty and grace of Lisa, and later asks the mother for the hand of the girl in marriage. Because of the prominent position occupied by the Marquis and because of his great wealth, the mother is greatly flattered at his proposal and immediately makes plans for the signing of the marriage contract.

While this marriage is being arranged for in the church an old beggar appears asking for alms, but he is rudely pushed aside by the mother. Luc, who is feeling very much dejected, rushes to his aid. For this kindness, the beggar gives Luc a magic flute. This flute has the power, when played upon, to make everyone dance. The beggar disappears, and Luc begins to play and Lisa comes from the house.

COLLEGE OATH
"We will never bring disgrace to this college, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the college. We will never allow the college to be used as a tool for the promotion of a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this college to those who come after us, greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

"AND THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE"

Those observing students who have attended S. T. C. are familiar with the above quotation. "And The Truth Shall Make You Free." To say the least, it is inspiring, is it not? But do you know the source of origin? No, this one is not taken from Shakespeare. It came from the Bible, but what part?—John 8:32. Jesus is talking to those Jews who believe in Him: "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

College people, if they are honestly endeavoring to be students, are in search of the truth, and the truth shall make them free.

What is truth? You must have some definite idea of what you are searching for if you are to know when you have found it. Though, the word, truth, is in the mouths of many, there are few who have any clear idea concerning it or can give a clear cut answer to the question, "What is Truth?"

Some answer, truth is that which a man believes in his own mind to be true, but there are many incorrect beliefs; they cannot all be true. A person may deceive himself and honestly think he knows what is correct in a particular circumstance, yet, though he be ever so sure, he cannot change the facts. Where facts exist there truth exists. When we fail to grasp the facts, we fail to grasp the truth; yet this does not mean that the truth is not there; it means that we have simply failed to find it. Some say that it is impossible for man to "put his finger" on truth; that it fluctuates or varies according to what a person's opinion is; that what is truth to one is not truth to another. But can truth change? How foolish all education, all the works of the world, if truth, toward which all effort is being directed, is merely a fluctuating phantom, in one condition today, in another tomorrow. Think for yourself.

Have you learned any truths in your lifetime? Have you tested these truths? Have you tested them an infinite number of times? Have they changed since your mother and father were children? Have they changed since you first met them? Have they changed since the fall of Rome? Do you expect them to change tomorrow or the next day or any time in the future?

What chemist will say, "It is my opinion that an increased amount of oxygen will cause a burning substance to burn more rapidly," or what aviator will say, "It is my opinion that if I do not take an adequate fuel supply to make a given trip, I will have to make a forced landing," or what boy flying a kite will say, "It is my opinion that if I send this kite up; it must come back to earth again." Do they not know these things?

We recognize those things as truths that have stood the test of time and that will continue to do so, forever. We know that the same conditions that caused Rome to fall some fifteen hundred years ago, namely: concentration of wealth into the hands of a few, decline of the farms, corrupt government, over-increasing luxuries, departure from simplicity, selfishness, migration of people from farm to city, will cause any civilization to fall. These conditions will cause a civilization in any period of the world's history to fall. Given these conditions, we know that the resultant truth can be nothing but ruin. What our opinions might be regarding the matter can have no effect whatever on the outcome. Thus the laws of God, the truths, have been fixed absolutely. They are inflexible. They are not to be tampered with by man.

Man has only the power of learning what the truth is and then choosing for himself. If he would be happy and prosper, he must conform to those truths which will bring him happiness and prosperity. If he desires health, he must obey the laws of health. If he wishes to be strong, he must eat good food and take sufficient exercise.

He who would be great must obey a great number of God's laws that will result in making him great (not in the eyes of men, but in the real sense). He must be a strict observer of truths and be servant to them. "If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all and servant to all."

The road to true success, not fictitious or false success, is made up of strict obedience to those truths that increasingly elevate man; those truths that lend him to be a better man today than he was yesterday. "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good"—the truth—always the same, yesterday, today, and forever—infinite great as the wisdom of the God which is behind it,—and over offering a challenge to the best and highest efforts of mankind.

"And ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free"—free from fears, from superstitions, from the death pits of ignorance.—Norman Clough.

TO S. T. C. SENIORS

Into the responsibilities of educational, civic, and moral leadership these chosen citizens and their associates, numbering tens of thousands, are about to enter. What these young men and women are, what they believe, what they do—their art in life, their skill in service, their ideals of citizenship, their willingness to take responsible leadership which the high school teacher clearly implies, their power to grow—are supremely important to the happiness and advance of America. It would be well if, during his senior year, every candidate for teaching learned by actual membership in state and national associations the meaning of participation and cooperation in the world's greatest profession. The member of a senior class who becomes familiar with the names and ideals and activities of the educational leaders in his state and in the nation has a good foundation upon which to build his own professional life. He is more likely to translate the promise of college days into sound professional achievement with such a background of aims and accomplishments.—Joy E. Morgan.

Fraternity Elects '31-'32 Officers

The members of Alpha Phi Sigma, honorary scholastic fraternity, held a picnic in the College park Thursday evening, April 30. More than thirty students and their sponsor had a part in the games, program and fellowship around the camp fire.

After the picnic lunch was served, a short business session was held at which time Glenn Duncan was re-elected president of the organization. Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Aletha Bessinger; treasurer, Marvin Shamberger; and secretary, Harold Christian.

Plans were made to send out honorary certificates to the high school honor graduates again this year.

Alpha Sigma Alpha Has Formal, April 18

The Country Club was transformed into a Hawaiian village Saturday night, April 18, when the members of Alpha Sigma Alpha entertained with their spring formal from 8:30 until 11:30 o'clock.

Spanish moss, which was sent from Louisiana for the dance, was hung from the ceiling. A thatched hut was inhabited by fuzzy artificial monkeys. In one corner was a realistic volcano, with a cone of red paper on which a large red spotlight was focused. The sorority emblem, a large electric lighted pin, and lights for the orchestra were the only other lights used. Palm trees completed the Hawaiian motif.

Orange leis were given to each guest. Confetti, rolled to represent coconuts, sparklers and noisemakers were distributed during the dances. Miss Mary Ann Bovard and Miss Lillian Townsend, dressed in hula-hula skirts, red satin blouses and leis, served punch. Ted Breedlove's orchestra furnished the music.

Leather card cases with the Alpha Sigma Alpha crest on them were given as favors to the guests.

Those present were: Miss Nell Martindale, Mrs. U. G. Whiffen, Misses Pauline Walker, Alice Kline, Annamae Adams, Mildred Medsker, Katherine Gray, Mary Powell, Loretta Gooden, Mary Myers, Grace Goodson, Margaret Dysart, Karol Oliphant, Virginia Myers, Irene Smith, Isabel Staleup, Elizabeth Bishop, Flora Culver, Margaret Maxwell, Mildred Jacobs, Guenivere Knoeb, Juanita Marsh, Ola Slagle, Elizabeth Price, Clara Mae Shartzar, Marian Vail, Martha Pfeiffer, Dorothy Whitmore, Isabel Wightman, Margaret Knox, Sylvia Grouser, Betty Hickernell, R. College High Stages Unique Style Show

The College High School classes in Vocational Home Economics in charge of Misses Josephine Sherman, Elizabeth Swaney and Eleanor Nicholas gave an elaborate style show, Thursday afternoon, April 16, in the College Auditorium. The program was arranged in the form of the alphabet with each letter standing for some part of their work. Dresses for school, home, afternoon parties and evening wear were shown as well as pajamas, aprons and children's clothes. Most of the garments were made by the members of the class but a few were shown through the courtesy of the Haines Dry Goods Store. The stage was decorated with potted plants and spring flowers. A bed-making demonstration was given by Larue Robey. The children who took part in the show were:

Mary Jane Jones, Joan Phares, Mary Carolyn Schuster, Hattie May Costello, Wanda Joy Bickett, Jack Curfman, Charles Juvenal, and Mary and Billy Garrett. The last named made a big hit with the audience with his non-chalance.

The girls who acted as models were: Mildred Hollensbe, Helene Robey and Larue Robey.

Ten members of the Maryville high school 1931 basketball squad were awarded letters and sweaters recently by Coach Wallace Croy of the Spoof-hounds. The men are Captain Denn Miller, Billy Padgett, Kurby Bovard, Jack Chick, Norman Jones, Delmar Schooler, Max Seyster, Elbert Barrett, Ray Haselwood, and Marvin Seyster.

Major Projects For Y.M. Are Planned

Eighteen major projects and policies for 1931-32, recommended for the Student Y. M. C. A. by the cabinet of the organization, were voted upon and accepted by the membership at a meeting held last Wednesday night. The recommendations will be the basis upon which the "Y" will launch projects and enforce certain rules of the organization.

Officers for the new year (April, 1931, to April, 1932) have been elected. Walter Allen was re-elected president, and Glenn Duncan was re-elected secretary. Norman Clough is the new vice-president, succeeding Burl Zimmerman, who graduates this year, and Albert Hagan is the new treasurer, succeeding Ernest G. Reid, who also graduates this year. A. J. Cauffman and Stephen G. LaMar were re-elected sponsors. O. Myking Mchus was selected as the third sponsor, succeeding W. E. Holdridge, who will be on leave next year.

Committee chairmen have been appointed. Clarence Lloyd will assume charge of membership; Arlio Smith, social service activities, and Albert Hagan, gospel team work.

Representation at the International Convention of the Canadian and American Y. M. C. A.'s, held at Cleveland, O., August 4-9, in affiliation with the World's Conference, was one of the recommendations accepted.

Continuation of gospel work in the College district, organization of Hi-Y clubs in the district, contribution of funds to the state and national student field work, continuation of affiliation with the state and national organizations, holding a second international fellowship banquet, observing the twenty-sixth anniversary next year, inviting the state convention of the Y. M. C. A. to be held here next spring and holding a "mixer" for all men students of the College were among some of the other recommendations.

One of the unique suggestions, most favorably received, was that of establishing international correspondence with foreign boys.

"That emphasis be placed on the good moral character and ethical conduct of the members of the Y. M. C. A." was unanimously accepted with all the other recommendations. The clause further states, "Any member using liquor or indulging in immoral practices will be voted out of the organization by the other members."

Tri Sig's Banquet Is Held April 20

The thirty-third anniversary of the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority was observed the evening of April 20, with a Founders Day banquet at the M. E. Church, South. The idea of a Greek temple was carried out in the decorations and program. Three tables formed a triangle, in the middle of which was a reproduction of the Greek Parthenon, about one and one-half feet high. The tables were decorated with purple tapers; purple and white are the sorority colors. The place cards were miniature replicas of the Parthenon. Bracelets with the sorority crests were favors.

Miss Mildred Sandison, toastmaster, introduced the Greek temple as the theme of the evening. The toasts were as follows:

Miss Margaret Lindley, "The Architect and Sculptor;" Miss Nell Hudson, "The Plan of the Temple;" Miss Fausta Wycoff, "The Foundation;" Mrs. Emmett Scott, "The Columns;" Miss Pauline Walker, "The Entablature;" Miss Alice Cline, "The Inner Shrine;" Miss Lois Halley, "The Frieze;" Miss Edna Loucks, "Young Greeks;" Miss Hermene Baur, "Toasts to Omega." Miss Alentha Bessinger played a piano solo. At the close of the dinner the members sang, "Statoly and Royal," the sorority song. Other sorority songs were sung during the dinner and program.

The following members were present: Mrs. Bruce Montgomery, Mrs. Harry Nutz, Mrs. Erman Barrett, Mrs. Irvin Stanley, Mrs. Dean Johnson of Skidmore, the Misses Lois Halley, Nona Bruce, Nina Bruce, Grace Langan, Ruth fields, Pauline Walker, Pauline Carroll, Helen Morford, Aleatha Bessinger, Grace Cook, Margaret Lindley, Paye Bogard, Berniece Chapman, Fausta Wycoff, Edna Loucks, Alice Cline, Lucille Lackey, Esther McMurphy, Margerie Bruce, Hermene Baur, Minnie Knox, Mildred Sandison, Ruth Miller, and Miss Nell Hudson and Miss Hettie Anthony, sponsors.

Former Student

Miss Lettye Wagenblast, a former S. T. C. student, is now in the U. S. Civil Service, in the Indian Service. She is located at Sherman Institute, a non-reservation boarding school, at Riverside, California. This school is an industrial school and there are eleven hundred students enrolled. Miss Wagenblast says that she likes that type of work better than teaching in the public schools.

Blanche H. Dow Writes on Spain For Magazine

March Issue of The Overland Magazine Carries Story, "Glimpses From Romantic Spain" by Instructor.

Miss Blanche H. Dow, of the College faculty, has an interesting story concerning some of her experiences in Spain in the March issue of the monthly magazine "The Overland." This magazine, known as "The Magazine of the West," is published in San Francisco, California. It was established in 1868 by Bret Harte.

The following article by Miss Dow is headed "American One-Night Stands: Iron.—Editor's note.

O. S. is an artist, but an artist with a scientist's devotion to that which is methodically arranged, else we should never have known Iron; and to have been catapulted into Madrid without the transitional experience of Iron would have been like plunging into an orgy of main courses without the easing introduction of an aperitif.

No two Americans could have been truer to their national prerogative of efficiency than we, in our determination to waste no precious time on the meaningless formalities of passing the frontier. Spanish customs, the more experienced of our friends had told us, were slow; that time was something to be cherished was an idea entirely foreign to the Spanish mind; that the American who would know Spain must deny his tradition and turn a deaf ear to the nagging voice of his puritanical conscience which demands value received in the matter of accomplishment for every hour in the day. Good advice, no doubt, and well meant, but we were not ordinary travelers. Did we not approach Europe intellectually armed with artistic background and linguistic skill, not to mention the profound pedagogical conviction that an intelligent, educated American can accomplish what he will? We patted ourselves with pride and smiled indulgently at the paternal conservatism of the Paris agent who had pronounced third class in Spain impossible for ladies. Little did he know of the resources of the American woman. Kindly intent, that of the Spaniard at Hendaye, who counseled staying the night at Iron. Not for us. We sat the unpadded benches of the third class coach with a pleasing sense of superiority to environment. A conversational dip or two into the vocabulary of college classes was sufficient to curb any too ardent enthusiasm for our acquaintance. As for spending the night in a frontier station, unnamed, unclaimed in the academic preparation for our European experience, we had no such intention. Thirty minutes in Iron would be ample for the necessary inspection and the next day, with its purposed program of the Prado, was not to be disturbed.

It was O. S.'s suitcase which was our undoing. So does the circumstance that chances change all the tone of our way. A honking goose must have forever thrilled the heart of a grateful Roman. Even so, I lift my hand in deferential salute to the bulging lines and deep graven scars of that battered vehicle of travel when I stumble upon it in some dim corner of the attic. To me it spools Iron, and Iron means mountains that come down to meet the sea, little fishing boats with their squirming, gleaming catch, black-garbed fishermen, brown legs and arms of children playing in the streets, shouting in some strange polygot of French and Spanish and Basque, the soft translucence of a summer moon on the white plaster walls and rounded dome of the church of Nuestra Señora, coolness of morning when the air is washed clean by sea winds, early mass in the old Gothic church whose stones are worn by centuries of kneeling, whose air of peace and credulous faith is untouched by the press of modern doubt.

To the suitcase belongs the laurels, or rather to the master mind that solved the difficulty of immediate disposal of what one sought within its depth by dividing its interior into compartments, separated by cardboard, neatly fitted, covered with dainty flowered print, a perfect ensemble, and to the Spanish custom officials, a fascinating one. A long, slender compartment for gloves and hose, a fat, square one for kerchiefs, large ones for the crushables, small ones for odds and ends. The dark Latin face of the douanier glowed with interest as he fathomed the depth of every division, bringing out and putting back each article. His admiring attention may have rewarded the author for her pains but it cost us the train for Madrid and a hot four o'clock of a Spanish afternoon found us unseated in a balcony bedroom where nothing was cool save the water marked "hot."

The most egotistical plans yield to the inevitable and once having bowed, second submissions were easy. No thrifty professor ever planned to waste time in Europe napping, but Spanish siestas are as essential a part of the program as Spanish tortillas and hours of being buffeted about on a wooden bench, fatiguing encounters with foreign loquacity, and a thermometer that registered in the vicinity of a hundred properly paved the way for the deep sleep into which we fell, a sleep that persisted in spite of the buzzing of flies, the rancid smell of fish, and the constant babel of strange tongues that rose in a stream from the street.

Into our consciousness broke suddenly a strange, high-pitched voice, rising in mournful cadence before it fell in a long lament. What was it? The same cry, the same syllables, the same inflections further down the street. From different directions, clearer now and intelligible, came the monotonous chant, "sardinas frescas," low in pitch on the first syllable—sar—mounting the scale on di and nas, reaching its peak on fres, with a long, falling diminuendo on the final tone. It beat on one's brain with the insistence of an aboriginal totem. One leap to the balcony and the explanation was clear. Up the streets from the wharves came the fishwives, tall, angular Basquaises, with long, full skirts of unvarying black, hair combed sleek into a firm knot at the back of the neck, arms raised as they balanced lightly on their heads the broad, flat baskets of rush, full of flashing fish. The long light touched the metallic glint of scales to a faint rose and gold, and as they slipped and squirmed in the shallow baskets, they gleamed like jewels. Straight from the boats they came, these fishwives, their wares still wet with the sea and something of its spell upon them, while out of the doorways flocked the housewives to scoop up the shining fish in their hands.

But fishwives, housewives, eager children, curious tourists stepped suddenly aside as down the tortuous, cobble street came the native equipage, a heavy cart with two enormous wheels, drawn by a pair of tranquil, yellow oxen, goat skins swinging over their eyes. Grave they were and patient under the burden of their heavy yoke. Steadily, soberly, they went about their work, work unchanged in centuries, untouched, uncontaminated by the whirl and hurry of a machine-made society. A little old woman from the hills came jogging along, astride an infinitesimal donkey. On either side her diminutive steed hung huge cans of fresh milk, from which she filled the dippers extended to her. Her tanned, leathery face was seamed and lined like a net but her shrewd eyes were undimmed and her shrill voice rose in defense of her own. Small boys aped her donkey's heels at their own risk for if, in the delightful lethargy of a moment's pause, the tiny creature refused to lift a foot in protest to their testing, be sure the old woman's tongue carried a quirt as sharp in its lashing as any whip. The streets were full of human sounds, children shouting at play, a screaming baby too small to keep up with the others, hawkers crying their wares, the driver with his throaty commands, the strident tones of the milk vender, a strange discordant symphony that drew as it repelled. The air was stifling. Hot oil and frying fish and sweating humanity exuded their odors in a staggering conglomeration. It was that moment at the end of a hot day when nature seems still, beset with a paralyzing lassitude. The sea sent forth no freshness. The mountains guarded their coolness jealously. Strange and aloof they seemed at the end of the wandering streets, like sentinels that frowned disdainfully on the suffocating little town.

Night came and dinner, announced for eight, in true Spanish fashion was served at ten. A tortilla, a broiled chicken, fresh sardines fried in olive oil, roast beef appeared one after another. How long could American capacity withstand such an onslaught? Thanks to the spirit of Valley Forge and San Juan Hill and Belleau Wood, we rose to that dinner in the best form we could muster and achieved at least a partial victory.

The consequence was what might be expected, a sublimated, introspective melancholy, tinged by a sentimentalism that was wholly gustatory. The States seemed very far away. Land and language and people were strange. Why did one leave the known pleasures of home in quest of adventure? Madrid, Toledo, Seville, Granada, how uninviting they sounded and how impossibly remote they seemed. Into that reverie came without a warning a confident voice. "Good evening, ladies, how have you enjoyed your dinner?" and one Ralph Simpson, once of Sherry's, late of the French Infantry, and now chef of the Hotel de France of Iron, stood before us. His American father spoke in his name and his speech, but nothing less than a French mother could have accounted for the quirk of his mustache and the jaunty set of his cook's cap. He knew New York and Chicago. He knew Sherry's from the point of view of its holy of holies, its cuisine. We knew it by reputation and from having gazed with longing through its windows, but for the time being we communed in the democratic bond of a common tongue. For us the chicken broiled to a turn! For us the fresh sardines! For us, too, the extra touches to the tortilla! No international delegate ever basked in the warmth of a greater importance than we in the consciousness of that culinary triumph, in our honor and for us alone.

Again into the street we went, but into a street transformed. Gone were the crowds, the noises, the smells. Iron was fast asleep and as she slept, the wind washed her streets with air that was sweet. The moon touched her with magic, veiling her old houses in softened light, giving them grace and beauty. A bedraggled, wrinkled old woman by day, she had become by night a lovely lady, enriched by her past, crowned by her age, hallowed by time. Dirt and ugliness had no existence here. Protected on one side by her mountain heights, lulled by the lapping of her ocean tides, brooding her ancient thoughts, she took us to her and made us hers.

Morning meant market and mass, mass and market for the two were inextricably woven together. The day's provisions for spirit and body went hand in hand. The market teemed with thrifty housekeepers, baskets on their arms, sharp eyes peering here and there for coveted bargains. Practical people one would have said, with no thought other than the material one of the moment. One after another, however, they drew somewhere from the depths of their capacious pockets, little black deposit was paid back to the students when the books were returned in good order. One-fifth of this fee was turned over to the bookstore for rental on the textbooks that were used.

A fee of $10 is charged for each two and one-half hours of College credit. Not more than one-third of the requirements for any certificate, diploma or degree may be done by extension.

This department is self-supporting. No appropriation from the state is obtained for maintenance.

The market was a blaze of color. oranges and carrots, radishes and lettuce, great meaty cherries, red and yellow, vegetables still bright with the water of their recent washing. They were yours for the asking, very nearly, if you could furnish a cornucopia hastily made out of yesterday's newspaper, for paper bags are an unwarranted extravagance. Gentle and gracious too, these market women with their soft "Que quiero usted, senorita?" and a "Muchas gracias. Vaya usted con Dios" after the most inconsequential purchase.

Such was the little Basque town we saw because of a suitcase. The lure of travel is the unknown adventure that waits around the corner. Accidents prove golden and annoyances have an unexpected way of disclosing pleasures and treasures.

"Full oft 'tis seen. Our means secure us, and our mere defects Prove our commodities."

Thus it was with Iron where the mountains come down to the sea and the boats come in at evening.

Extension Work Is Now Increasing

The Extension department of the College is a department with which most of us are not familiar. It is thru this department that the College is taken to those who cannot come to College for work. The slogan of the Extension Department is, "If you can't come to College the College will come to you."

In this department is found two types of work—correspondence and visitation.

There are more students enrolled outside of the College of the present time through the Extension Department than there are in school.

During the school year 1929-30, the total extension enrollment was 832, which is a greater number than was enrolled in residence. The total amount in fees collected and disbursed was $10,794. This money was used to take

Special Teaching Permits Are Scarce

A letter from State Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Charles A. Lee to Mr. Charles Myers, Northwest Missouri District High School Supervisor carries the following information:

"I am receiving a large number of letters and long distance calls from persons asking special permission to teach during the coming year. I want it strictly understood that we are not granting anyone special permission. Requirements will perhaps be raised since we have a large over-supply of teachers. Do not grant any special permission."

"I am happy to report to you that the school bill passed the House with only one vote against it. This is indeed a significant victory. It will mark the dawn of a new era in public education in this state. It is perhaps the most constructive and far-reaching school measure enacted into law in this state since the passage of the law providing for free public schools."

The Primary Council will meet Monday night, April 20 in Social Hall. Mr. Mchus will talk on "The Place of Social Science in the Kindergarten and Primary Grades."

The Stroller

By T. T. T.

"Cheesy Joe" O'Connor, the fastest man on feet, is trying to start a new bid in hair-cuts. The new style, as introduced by O'Connor, will be known in better circles as the "Pineapple Bob."

"Cricket" Ashmore declared that he weighed 132 pounds and it was all man, too.

The Stroller called Jack Frost up for a date last Tuesday night, but found that Mr. John Erskine, Esq., was engaged for the coming seventeen days. The Stroller, accordingly, was quite disappointed, as nothing in the way of a date is more likable than a man of twenty-one, chubby, and of good humor, according to specifications given by the notice put on the bulletin board by Frost's manager, Edwin Newkirk.

The Stroller in his wanderings the other morning counted seventy-nine automobiles (including Fords, in case there might be any doubt as to the classification), two buses, and one truck parked around the main building. That's only one for about every ten students.

The Stroller was quite impressed the other night by the way the Freshman trackster, Robbie Mutti, tore into the finish on the two-mile run. He ran the last lap as if it were a hundred yard dash, completely unmindful of the fact that two others had gone over the finish ahead. Plenty of confidence. Incidentally, the Stroller was rummaging thru some of Robbie's papers the other day, and found an apparently important document signed thus: "Robert (the great) Mutti." Maybe we have a great man rising among us.

Some of the boys who insist on hanging around the railroad yards behind the dormitory, or somewhere in that territory, found out what it was to look at a gun from the wrong end the other night. Little damage was done, the nine dollars was returned, and the crooks were jailed, but Lee Dunham never knew how fast his chubby legs would travel and Dean Rybolt never knew how it seemed to offer cigarettes to a hold-up man until the opportunity arrived. The Stroller still goes down seventh and ninth streets occasionally, with little fear of being robbed. You just can't get blood out of a turnip. Just so no one takes his watch. It's quite a prize, since it used to belong to a New York millionaire named Ingersoll, or Waterbury, or something.

The Stroller is anticipating the arrival of the horse now that they have the wagon down in the lower hall near the industrial arts department. Someone says it all has something to do with the barn and farm yard which is to appear in the May Fete soon, but now that the wagon has developed down there it will take a good one or someone funny to convince the Stroller that all that unrelenting which has floated out from this end of the institution during the last few months isn't the result or development of a course in blacksmithing to be finally added to the curriculum at S. T. C.

Anyway Mr. Whiffen admits under fire that he can shoe a horse. Among other funny things which he and Burl Zimmerman can commit, produce or inspire there has developed recently some other unusual things including a huge wooden tub big as a horse tank and with large wooden handles. This the stroller guesses sets off the outfit or figures in the "Magic Flute" with the Church and other attractive bits of stage equipment, etc., which is saturating the lower hall of the administration building around the industrial arts department.

scattered. At the extreme southern end of this hall through a white latticed window in a garden fence adjoining the house, the punch was served. As the dancers approached this spot the flood lights played on the beautiful evening dresses and formal attire creating a rich gay and charming atmosphere to the occasion.

The garden fences and archways of the estate were decorated and interlaced with weeping willow and fragrant lilac branches and blossoms. The large shield crest of Sigma Mu rested high on the east wall of the main club room, and under the rays of the powerful flood light lent its impressiveness to the affair, catching the eyes of all those entering the room.

Miss Mary Anne Bovard and Miss Lillian Townsend, arrayed in unique costumes, served the punch and presented the favors, mingling with the dancers in time to the rhythmic strains of Ted Brecklove's orchestra. The first favor was a tiny pink may basket overflowing with dainty spring flowers and in the deep recesses of the baskets mints were hidden. The second favor presented to each guest was a silver dresser vanity on the lid of which was engraved the crest of Sigma Mu.

Two novel tap dances were given by Miss Cleola Dawson and Miss Marian Tollaksen. The specialty dancers, wearing the pretty fashionable ladies' street pajamas, made their appearance through the main entrance of the mansion, during the intermission. They first presented a duo tap dance and for encore finished with a new arrangement of the rope skipping clog.

At the close the party became somewhat informal as heaps of confetti and colorful paper spirals became misplaced and formed entangling alliances which finally slowed up the dance and brought it to a happy close.

The members and guests included: Representatives—Clarence Woolsey, Sigma Tau Gamma; Mary Powell, Alpha Sigma Alpha; Mildred Sandison, Sigma Sigma Sigma; Pauline Andrews, Residence Hall.

Guests—Mrs. Jacob Porterfield, Mrs. U. G. Whiffen, Mrs. S. G. LaMar, Mrs. O. C. Miller, Mrs. W. T. Garrett, Misses Margaret Lindley, Aletha Nelson, Virginia Larmer, Betty Selcman, Aletha Besinger, Fausta Wycoff, Elizabeth Bishop, Ruth Matlock, Edna Fishell, Alice Cline, Pauline Carroll, Hazel Lyons, Maxine Hudson, Betty Price and Messrs. Frank Moore, Nolan Broadhurst, and Ernest Reid.

Miller, Lowell Galt, Marvin Shamberger, Donald Robey, Elwood Williams, Orville Crowder Miller, W. T. Garrett and U. G. Whiffen, sponsor.

Sigma Mu Delta Has Formal Party May 2

At 8:30 Saturday night, May 2, in the Country Club House began the merry Spring Formal Dance of the Sigma Mu Delta.

The Club rooms were decorated to represent a beautiful country estate with the artistic home front in the southwest corner of the main hall. A fountain whose waters flowing over the natural rocks and pebbles at its base sparkled in the rainbow flood lights cast upon it was located in the north part of the east hall of the Club, on the imitation blue grass sod-lawn. On the lawn lounging chairs and benches were scattered. At the extreme southern end of this hall through a white latticed window in a garden fence adjoining the house, the punch was served. As the dancers approached this spot the flood lights played on the beautiful evening dresses and formal attire creating a rich gay and charming atmosphere to the occasion.

David Lu Speaks In Assembly, April 29

A brilliant and gentlemanly little Chinese young man by the name of David Lu, made his appearance on the College campus last Wednesday morning, April 29, and spoke on conditions in his native country before the College faculty, board of regents, and the student body, at the regular 10:00 regular 10:00 o'clock assembly hour.

Mr. Lu, who is twenty-four years of age, and who weighs exactly one-hundred-seven and one-half pounds, is a graduate of a Chinese University, but he is now a student at the University of Missouri. Mr. Lu was born in New York, which accounts for his ability to speak the English language so fluently. He has spent the last several years in China, coming to America last fall to enroll in the school of Journalism, at the University, from which he hopes to be graduated next January.

Concerning his great country which covers four million square miles of territory and in which four to five hundred million people are striving to live, David Lu said, "War has been the greatest curse of the country." War has been allowed to persist chiefly on account of the lack of a strong centralized government or a strong central military leader according to the speaker.

Mr. Lu said that China is striving for political equality, economic development, and for the respect of other nations, with equal tariff rights, and with local civic control. The speaker pointed out the brighter side of the Chinese situation, saying that the nation was bending efforts to stamp out illiteracy, and that conditions were not as bad as many of the metropolitan papers have led Americans and others to believe.

Following Dr. Painter's talk, Mrs. Dildine served refreshments assisted by Mrs. Virgil Rathbun, Mrs. Wallace Croy, Mrs. O. C. Schwegel, and Miss Juanita Marsh, the assisting hostess.

M.S.T.C. Bearcats Defeat K.S.T.C. In Dual Meet

The Maryville Bearcats defeated the Kirksville Bulldogs in a dual meet held on the College field, Friday night, May 1, 73 to 63, making it four wins in dual competition this year. It was the first loss in dual meets for the Bulldogs in two years.

However, his mile relay team won that event.

Sheetz and Burns tied with Keethler in the high jump and the nine points were split up among them, six going to Maryville and three to Kirksville. The Maryville Bearcats, on their road trip Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, and with the game at Maryville on Thursday, won three games and lost one.

Kirksville defeated the Bearcats in an 8 to 1 game at Kirksville on Monday. Lunkop, pitcher for Kirksville, allowed but five safe hits in the game, and held the Bearcats scoreless until the ninth inning when Ashmore, who had worked around to third base following a two-base hit, scored on a throw from the left field. Barnhouse, who started for the Bearcats, was relieved in the sixth inning by Johnnie Lisle.

On Tuesday at Fulton, the Bearcats defeated the Westminster Blue Jays 8 to 1. Barnhouse was on the mound for Maryville, and pitched a good game, allowing only six hits in the nine innings. The fielders performed in good fashion.

On Wednesday, Cowden pitched a good game against the Blue Jays, winning against his former fellow football team, by a score of 4 to 3. Maryville got but 4 hits but they were good for the necessary 4 runs to win, while Westminster got 8 hits, well scattered.
